H Q Mitchell Traveller Teacher's Book Level B2

Not sure if this is the right group, but any help would be greatly appreciated: I have a PDF document that I have created on my Windows box using the Acrobat Distiller. That PDF document has been put into a library and then uploaded as a new folder to a web site. Now I want to be able to search for a phrase within that document, and be able to highlight all the instances of that phrase. Is this something that's possible? I have tried using the Find and Replace function within Acrobat, but when it comes to searching in PDF, it doesn't seem to work. It will highlight the first instance of the term, but not any subsequent instances that appear after that point. A: Even though this question is quite old, I had a similar problem and this is how I solved it: Open the PDF in a text editor, e.g. the Free GUI editor Notepad++. Copy the content of the PDF and paste it into a new text editor window, e.g. LibreOffice or Windows' Notepad. Delete the first few lines. Use the found and replaced dialog to replace a single character in the file or a specific text pattern. Go to the destination file, e.g. the site where you want to open the PDF. Save the modified version. If you want to search for the text pattern in the entire document, you might want to use the OCR function of the pdf editor, e.g. as the default PDF editor or Acrobat Reader X. Kit for Traveller B1 - Level B1, Pdf - Studykits, Key B1 Hello, I am currently studying for my Travel Level B1 at school. I am taking a book in English and also coming across some information (via the internet) that (in my opinion) I would need to know before I can start travelling. Ive put a few of the things I learnt above, but I am still very confused because I cant find anything on the internet. I also cant find any questionnaires or forms I could fill in, or anything similar. Please could someone help me. Thanks A: As we are getting the same question on SuperUser.com, I'll answer there as well. My answer is based on the premise that you're studying the Traveller B1 book, which is complete for a level and, thus, no need to worry about word-for-word correctness. Could someone give me any advice on what the issues might be for going abroad Unfortunately there are no issues unless you have one. As a native English speaker, it can be a challenge to get a level B1 in an ELT program as you can only speak at basic communicative competence. There are some issues that will come up which must be addressed (change of program, no experience with ELT, teacher who doesn't know the level as the material is written for the previous level, etc.) but in general there are not. We can say that you are expected to read the book cover-to-cover, write a short summary, and answer a few questions about the book to test your overall understanding. It's just one book, so you can skip any sections you don't care about as a native speaker, and conversely you can 3e33713323
